Although Latin has long ceased to be the language of instruction for all university courses, as it once was at Oxford and Cambridge, at Paris and Bologna, it is traditional to retain it for limited use on occasions of great academic solemnity, such as university convocations. The use of Latin today is a symbol of our academic descent from these earliest universities of mediaeval Europe and a humble reminder that the search for truth is both new and ancient.

The sketch on the front cover by Saint John artist Andrew Condé depicts Pendleton Island with the University's Research Vessel, Mary O, in the foreground.

Pendleton Island lies within Passamoquoddy Bay near the northern tip of Deer Island and is leased by the University as a multidisciplinary research and teaching facility.
